

TO SIGN MONEY BILL; RECESS IN CONGRESS

CURRENCY MEASURE BECOMES LAW TONIGHT WHILE CONGRESS ADJOURNS TO JAN. 12.

BRISTOW TAKES FLING

Kansas Senator Makes an Attack on Owens, Charging Him With Favoring Banks, Before Final Vote on Conference Report.

Washington, Dec. 23.—The conference report on the administration currency bill was approved by the senate by a vote of 43 to 25. As the house already had approved it, there remained only the question of the vice president and the speaker to complete the measure for President Wilson's signature. Three republicans and Senator Poinsett, progressive, joined the democrats in voting for the bill in the senate.

Washington, Dec. 23.—When the senate adjourned with the currency bill, the Christmas holiday will be the first the tired legislators have had since April 7, when President Wilson called them together in extra session to tackle the tariff and currency problem. The house before adjourning last night agreed to the joint resolution for such a recess and the senate leaders were prepared to adopt it today.

Six o'clock tonight was the hour for the senate to adjourn. President Wilson to sign the currency bill. Five hours later the president plans to leave for Pass Christian, Mississippi, for a three weeks' vacation.

Senator Owen and Representative Cawley, who are the only members of the congressional banking committee leaders in congress, were invited to attend the ceremony. The president will sign the bill with two gold pens and present one to Senator Owen and the other to Representative Cawley.

The president had a cabinet session today and exchanged Christmas greetings with his official family.

When the senate debate began under the agreement to adjourn at 3:30 this afternoon, Senator Bristow, one of the republicans of the banking committee who had been denied admittance to the deliberations of the democratic conferees, led off with an attack saying he proposed to express his opinion where they would get into the permanent records.

The agreement placing the secretary of the treasury, secretary of agriculture and comptroller of the currency under the control of the new system, he declared, was a move to bring the whole system under political control.

Arrangements for debate provided that Senators Bristow, Nelson and other republicans would have the floor at the conference agreement would have about three hours to talk.

Senator Bristow declared he believed Senator Owen had excluded him from the conference for fear he would join the democrats against Owen's "pet measures."

"It was done because he knew he could not control my vote," cried Mr. Bristow, "as he could not control the vote of some of the democratic colleagues in the conference."

"I am confident of winning out," he kept me tremendously busy, but I would rather do it than anything I know of."

Across the front of the school which occupies an eight-room apartment are two large, sunny rooms. A piano, a gramophone, and a few books make them a cozy lounge club. The girls are allowed the use of these rooms free. Then there are two bedrooms, spick span and "efficient."

The committee in charge of the Good Fellowship work for Christmas wish to thank the generous-hearted people who have contributed so freely of money and toys for the homes where Santa Claus needed help.

The work of distribution, in charge of Father William, is well in hand, and while more money could be used to advantage, every effort will be made to see that no home is overlooked.

If you have not already lent a hand, and feel so inclined, Wednesday morning will not be too late to send your offering to the committee office, where it will be placed in the hands of the committee.

CONTINUAL WARING CHECKS CHRISTMAS SPIRIT IN MEXICO

Mexican Merchants Make Feeble Efforts to Stock Stores With Holiday Goods Because of Strife.

Mexico City, Dec. 23.—Feeble efforts have been made to arrange holiday festivities in Mexico this year. Governor Corona of the federal district has enlisted a few of the city's fashionable women to assist him in holding a bazaar in one of the public parks, but even this show of holiday spirit is half apologetic, it being announced that the proceeds are to go toward buying clothing for the poor.

New Year's Day. Merchants in Mexico annually dress their windows and stores to attract the gift buying public, but unlike the stores in the United States, the rush is not over until one week later. Only a few Mexicans buy presents and distribute them on Christmas, but all of them want to give tokens of their love and friendship on New Year's day.

Little Effort. This year the merchants have made little effort to capture the holiday money. Sentiment has done the work, and the result has been that the money bags, as a people the Mexicans are impoverished. Merchants who had placed orders early in the year had European toy houses have some of the goods they had ordered.

However, the investigation of Burke's dealing with contractors is being pushed by the isthmian canal commission.

MYSTERIOUS WOMAN REMAINS IN JAIL

Monticello Lawyer Buried While Woman Companion is Held in Custody.

Monticello, N. Y., Dec. 23.—Melvin H. Couch, former district attorney of Sullivan county, was quietly buried this afternoon, leaving behind him no written word to explain what will go down as the mystery of Monticello his strange dual existence and his relations with his slave-like companion, Adelaide Brance, who for three years was a virtual prisoner in his office.

From a cell in the jail where she was held on a technical charge, the woman saw the funeral procession pass on to the cemetery. She had expressed a wish to be at the grave side, but the lawyer's widow forbade it. Later this afternoon she was to be released.

"Then I am going to vanish," she said. Couch died on the lounge in his office, early Sunday morning. His companion shrieking, gave the alarm and summoned a physician. Then for the first time, becoming known to her three years she had, for the love of the man, existed in a tiny quarter of the office partitioned off as a combination sleeping, living room and kitchen.

Couch for years had spent most of his time in his office. The Brance woman says she loved him devotedly, that he returned her love, and that their relations dated back fifteen years, when she, as a book agent, chance to call on him.

FRESH ERUPTIONS BURY PART OF ISLE

Paris, Dec. 23.—Fresh eruptions have caused further destruction of life among the natives of the island of Ambrim in the New Hebrides group, according to a report received today at the French ministry of marine from the captain of the French gunboat Kersaint on his arrival at Noumea, New Caledonia.

CHINA ASKS POWERS TO REMOVE TROOPS

Proposal To Remove Protecting Soldiers Meets With Disfavor at Washington.

Peking, China, Dec. 23.—The Chinese government today called to its representatives abroad to urge the powers to agree to Russia's proposal that all foreign troops should be withdrawn from the province of Chi-li including the legation guards, the regiment at Tientsin and the troops guarding the railway.

Not Favored. Washington, Dec. 23.—The proposal to withdraw the international forces from China has at no time met with favor among officials here. When Minister Reisch recently conveyed to the state department, of Russia the proposal for withdrawal of troops, officials took the ground that absolute assurance of the maintenance of order in Chi-li province would be the first condition of acquiescence.

No Assurance. No such assurance, however, was forthcoming and on the contrary officials observed with a some apprehension recent uprising and riotings against Yuan Shi Kai's government.

Some officials here believe Russia's proposal would be acceptable only to those two nations and possibly Japan, Great Britain, Germany and France, it was said, might be disposed to increase the forces which they have in the interest of their nation. So word of China's approval had been received here today.

ENTIRE COMMUNITY GIVEN XMAS CHEER

Cleveland Citizens Start Uniting of Charity Work, Giving Every Needy Family Christmas Happiness.

Cleveland, Dec. 23.—When Clevelanders start today the giving season for one of the greatest public celebrations the city has ever known, the celebration is to be known as Community Christmas and Cleveland has the honor of being one of the first big cities in the country to inaugurate the idea.

A Christmas tree almost fifty feet high, decorated profusely with toys and various electric bulbs, has been placed on the big Public Square in the center of the city. Band stands have been erected about it and tonight the ceremonies will start.

The object of the Community Christmas is to combine the activities of various charitable organizations and make the giving of Christmas cheer to the poor and needy a matter of civic duty. In the past, the Associated Charities, Salvation Army, Volunteers of America and other charitable societies have separately ministered to the needy.

This year a committee of thirty-five prominent citizens, including Mayor Baker and Lieutenant Governor Green, took charge of all charitable activities and they boast that not a person in this city of over 600,000 souls will be without a good meal and warm clothing on Christmas Day.

A unique method of raising funds was devised. A few weeks ago all the downtown stores placed on sale shares of stock in the Community Christmas Company. The shares sold for $1.00 each.

The certificates were made out in due legal form. They stated the Community Christmas Company would return the original investment with interest, not in money, but in satisfaction—a feeling that your investment had gone to make some unfortunate person or family happy on the day on which was declared "Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men." The stock sold, even beyond the expectations of some of the most enthusiastic backers.

On Christmas Eve a great canvas screen will be spread at one side of the Public Square and upon it will be thrown the words of patriotic and Yule Tide songs. There will be speeches and bands about the Christmas tree and a labor of love program has been arranged by various singing societies.

There has been established a holiday "clearing house" and Clevelanders have been asked to send the names of needy families to the committee in charge. The committee will then send in, eliminate duplications and see that every needy person in the city is supplied with food and clothing.

The tree will be lighted nightly until New Year. On New Year Eve another celebration will take place which is expected to replace the hilarious scenes in cafes and hotels which have characterized the observance of holidays in previous years.

REFUSE TO REVOKE SALOON LICENSE OF CLINTON HOTEL MAN

Janesville Girl Said to be Concerned in Case of Charles Dienzer, Charged With Selling Liquor to Minors.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Clinton, Dec. 23.—That a Janesville girl is concerned in the case of Charles Dienzer, owner of the Hotel Clinton, who pleaded guilty to the charge of selling liquor to a minor, Curt Lester, and was fined in the municipal court at Janesville several weeks ago, was brought out in the argument for the revocation of Dienzer's license which was argued before the village board here last evening. The board by a vote of 4 to 2, refused to revoke the license, but it is hinted that the temperance forces, who are pushing the case will take an appeal to the circuit court where they will petition for a writ of mandamus requiring the village clerk to close up Dienzer's place.

All Clinton is aroused over the case, which is one of the biggest sensations in the history of the village. The village hall was crowded long before seven-thirty Sunday evening and there was a large crowd of people about the door, unable to get inside. President A. E. Monroe of the village board, presided at the session with Assemblyman D. Rosa of Beloit, appearing for the board and the temperance forces, and Attorney E. H. Peterson and M. O. Monat of Janesville for Dienzer.

The Rev. A. W. Triggs, pastor of the Methodist church, was the complainant in the case, petitioning for the revocation of Dienzer's license. According to the facts which were gone over again in the hearing last night, young Lester secured a pint of port wine at the hotel, and then some weeks ago and took it to the kitchen of the hotel where he was developing pictures with several other young persons, among them a Janesville girl. It is reported that the girl drank some of the wine and later in the evening became quite ill and was taken to the home of her uncle in Clinton. Dienzer's prosecution on the charge of selling liquor to a minor followed. He pleaded guilty in Judge Maxfield's court and paid the minimum fine on the recommendation of the district attorney.

The temperance element in Clinton was hardly satisfied with this verdict and began the action for revocation of the license, but were defeated as a result of the hearing before the council last night.

Dienzer's attorneys introduced evidence to show that Lester was a minor who would be taken for twenty-one years or older by the average person, several prominent Clinton residents being of legal age. Counsel also pointed out that the fact that Dienzer pleaded guilty to the charge in order to avoid litigation and expense, did not necessarily make him a law-breaker and that the council should take these matters into consideration.

Residents here seem evenly divided as to their opinions of the case, although Dienzer is known to have a large following. Never before has the village council sided over the liquor question. The charges that the Anti-Saloon League is, concerning itself in the case, have not been substantiated. There are four

FEW TANGO NUMBERS FOR LAKOTA PARTY

New Freak Dances Relegated to Back-ground at Annual Dance of Young Men's Club.
While the tango and other faddish dances are not barred entirely from the program for the annual party of the Lakota Club at Assembly Hall on Friday evening, the new dances are relegated to the back-ground and the good old-fashioned waltz and two-step will be given their prestige of former years. A report that was circulated to the effect that the young men's club were to give a tango party has caused not a little comment and it was feared that the attendance would be cut unless the false impression was corrected. According to the committee on arrangements there will be but four or five tango numbers out of a total of twenty-four dances. The party promises to be unusually brilliant and the music will be exceptionally fine. Hatch's eleven piece orchestra having been engaged, including one of the finest pianists in the state, who will be here from Milwaukee.

JIM JEFFRIS COMES BACK AND DRAWS A HEAVY FINE: BUT HE ISN'T THE FIGHTER

Jim Jeffris has come back. He demonstrated that he could come back when he appeared in Judge Maxfield's court this morning and pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness, receiving a fine of $25 or thirty days in jail in consequence. But it wasn't Jeffris the prize-fighter, who failed to come back when he faced Jack Johnson at the Arena at Reno. It was Jim Jeffris, thresher and corn shredder of Sharon, Wis., who has found his way into the Janesville municipal court on several occasions, much to his regret. He started on hard cider yesterday, he told Judge Maxfield, but couldn't explain how he got to Janesville. He wanted to get off because he had a lot of work to do, he pleaded, and Judge Maxfield claimed he was as lenient as he could be under the circumstances. He warned Jeffris not to come back another time or it might be state's prison.

CLINTON WINS DEBATE OVER MILTON JUNCTION

The Clinton group debaters of the county Y. M. C. A. won a three to nothing decision over the Milton Junction group team at the latter place last evening. Each team was represented with two speakers, and they spoke on the question, Resolved that the policy of the United States toward Mexico since the downfall of Madero, has been right. Philip Lawson and Donald Clough, in the affirmative, from Clinton, were the winners, while Carl Marquart and Paul Fisher were the losers.
The judges for the debate were Prof. E. J. Lowth and Mr. Verdy both of this city, and Lowell White of Edgerton.

MINISTER AND WIFE GET GIFT OF GOLD

Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Chalmers Hazen Remembered in Handsome Manner by Baptists.

In honor of their fifth wedding anniversary, which is also the fifth anniversary of his pastorate at the local Baptist church, the Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Chalmers Hazen have been presented with a purse of gold pieces amounting to $80 by the members of the church and congregation. The presentation of the gift was to have been made at a reception at the church parlors on Monday evening, but owing to the illness of Mr. Hazen with tonsillitis it was impossible to celebrate the occasion as originally planned. Since the resignation of Rev. J. W. McLaughlin as pastor of the Presbyterian church Mr. Hazen is the oldest pastor in point of service in any of the four Evangelical churches of the city. His friends are pleased to extend best wishes to him and Mrs. Hazen at this holiday season.

ROBBING PETER TO PAY PAUL.

The argument used by Postmaster General Burleson to defend his statement that the postoffice department shows a profit of more than three million dollars, since the parcels post was established, is too flimsy to command serious attention, and but for the fact of its influence on people who are ignorant of conditions, the press could well afford to ignore it. What is the inside history? Simply this. Government mail contracts are let once in four years, not at a pound rate, but at a bulk price determined by weighing the mails just prior to letting the contracts. It so happened that within a year from the date of the last contract the parcels post came in and as a consequence the tonnage piled up at rapid rate, and the railroads were compelled to handle it without compensation.

The loss estimated by the carriers for the first six months is more than seventeen million dollars, with no relief in sight. This is "robbing Peter to pay Paul," and while it may seem all right from the government standpoint, it is all wrong, when justice is considered. Any private business pursuing the same policy would be severely censured.

There are some things which are legally right that are morally wrong, and the government is open to criticism along this line. The land lotteries, conducted every now and then, are worse than the old Louisiana lottery, because the principle is the same, while the element of chance is greater. These lands could be disposed of to the highest bidder, and there would be no cause for complaint.

The banks of the country are just now confronted with a queer proposition, because of the lack of a fine sense of honor on the part of the government. The bonds which they have been compelled to use as collateral for notes of issue are worth today but ninety cents. The lack of protection in this case amounts to repudiation. This would hardly be tolerated in a private corporation.

GOOD TIMES AT HOME.

The column of interviews published in the Gazette last night is a flattering endorsement for Janesville, as a trading center, and speaks volumes for the garden spot, where the city is located. The pleasant weather and fine roads have made it possible for buyers to come from a long distance and many of the country thoroughfares presented the appearance of a circus day in June.

Janesville is gaining in popularity as a good trading center and the city's up-to-date merchants are reaping the reward so justly merited. They not only carry the goods to back up their trade announcements, but they believe in publicity, through the liberal use of printer's ink. In other words, they have discovered that advertising pays.

The people of southern Wisconsin have money to spend and they are not worrying much about free trade and currency reform. A large percentage of them are tax-payers, but Christmas comes ahead of the tax roll, and they will tackle the latter with good heart, when it comes along, with now and then a few remarks about a reckless administration, that might not look well in type.

The city is to be congratulated on its prosperous trade conditions and the favorable outlook for the new year.

In consideration of the honor and the advertising of the president's presence, Pass Christian, Miss., is doubtless willing to forego its constitutional liberties.

"THE OCTOROON"

Dion Boucicault's wonderful play of the South before the War won for him undying fame. The powerful story it tells, and the heart interest it contains, make "The Octoroon" one of the choicest gems of the American stage.

The photoplay story is ever more powerful in its appeal than the stage production. Taken amid natural surroundings and in locations in harmony with the drama, this Kalem production is infinitely more interesting than the play as produced upon the boards.

There are many things about it that you will remember. The burning steamer, the chase through the swamp, and the fine acting of the beautiful Marguerite Courtot, as "Zoe," are among them.

A Pathe Western with George Gebhardt, a Selig comedy, and an Edison comedy, will complete the six-reel program. Admission 10c.

AMONG THE NEWSPAPERS.

For Better or for Worse. For better or for worse, and mainly for better, in all probability, the Owen-Glass currency bill is now certain of practically immediate enactment substantially as it stands.

Senator Weeks (Republican), who voted for the measure, pronounces it 75 per cent good. It contains features which many bankers think objectionable. But, to speak frankly, bankers have always differed so sharply among themselves on currency questions that it would not be humanly possible to devise a bill which would not be objectionable to many of their number.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Pretty Hot Stuff. Advocate should cool off, and quickly. It will melt the rails otherwise, or fire the mails. In the midst of a political outburst of a couple of columns we find—

The people of Wisconsin want progress. They demand it. But they want real progress, not the adulterated dope they have received from the hands of incompetent, extravagant, non-taxpaying bunch of political pirates who have deceived them the past ten years and brought the state to the verge of bankruptcy. And that's the mildest paragraph in the lot.

Too Wise for 'Em. While two city chaps were robbing his hen-roost, a Janesville farmer managed to surround and capture the automobile belonging to the marauders, which had been left by the roadside. Leave it to the average farmer to get the best of the bargain—even with thieves.—Oshkosh Northwestern.

JUST A LITTLE ROCKING CHAIR.

Just a little rocking chair
By the old fireplace,
Laughing eyes that greet you
And the sweetest face.

Just a little rocking chair
That Santa Claus had brought,
What a world of pleasure
For just one loving thought.

Just a little rocking chair
Filled with something sweet,
Little peals of laughter,
Chubby hands and feet.

Just a little rocking chair
Such a pretty red,
When the sand man comes around
Little sleepy head.

Just a little rocking chair
In the same old place,
Two blue eyes that look in mine
Just our baby Grace.

Just a little rocking chair
Only room for one,
Sotly rocking to and fro
Oh! what lots of fun.

Just a little rocking chair
Standing there alone,
How the dreary days have gone;
How the years have flown.

Just a little rocking chair
And days of loving care;
A worn and priceless relic

REASSESSMENT SUIT MAY BE FOUGHT OUT IN MADISON COURT

District Attorney Dunwiddie Plans to Petition for Writ of Mandamus Ordering State to Pay.

According to present plans District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie will begin an action in the circuit court for Dane county petitioning for a writ of mandamus ordering the state treasurer to pay to Rock county the sum of $8,000, the cost of the Janesville reassessment, which was withheld by the state officials from funds belonging to Rock county.

Dunwiddie was in Madison yesterday for a conference with the attorney general on the case, and came to the conclusion that the mandamus action would be the better course to pursue as the original plan of placing the facts directly before the supreme court would meet with several difficulties.

The city will be called upon to be a party to the action and the case will probably be presented jointly by the city and county attorneys. The city of Janesville refused to stand for the reassessment cost and the item was included in the special state levies against the city. The city refused to pay and filed an affidavit with the county treasurer setting forth their position, and the county treasurer certified the facts of the case in his returns to the state treasurer. As a result, the state withheld the amount with interest from the auto license funds which were due Rock county last summer and which would have been turned in to the county highway repair fund. As a result of the state's move the repair fund was seriously depleted this year.

The matter was brought before the county board at the November session and the district attorney was ordered to proceed to collect the money in such a manner as was best in his judgment. Mr. Dunwiddie has maintained that the county's case is with the state of Wisconsin and no way with the city, and the procedure which will be started at Madison will be with that idea in view.

"The county will get the money due; there's no doubt about that part of it," said Mr. Dunwiddie today.

"COKE" THIEVES ROB DR. EDDEN'S OFFICE

"Snow Birds" Turn Thieves in Order to Satisfy Craving for Powerful Drug.

Cocaine fiends whose craving for the powerful drug was so irresistible that they were willing to become thieves to satisfy their abnormal appetite, entered the office of Dr. R. W. Edden, over the Badger drug store, and took a bottle of the diuted drug and a set of amputating instruments. The supposed "snow birds" gained entrance to the office by prying open the door with a jimmy, some time early Monday morning, it is thought. The case was reported to the police yesterday.

Although there were other surgical instruments valued at higher amounts than the amputating set, which is worth about thirty dollars, nothing else was touched. It is evident that the real purpose of the thieves' visit was to get the "coke." He evidently knew where the bottle was kept for the room was not ransacked. No apparent reason can be found for the stealing of the surgical set, because there would be very small demand for the knives which would be hard to sell.

CHILDREN ARE GIVEN A MERRY CHRISTMAS

Miss A. C. Anderson, Visiting Nurse, Plays Santa Claus to Patients in City.

The hearts of forty-five boys and girls, patients of Miss A. C. Anderson, visiting nurse, were gladdened this afternoon at the celebration held by Miss Anderson at the assembly room of the city hall. The spirit shown by the youngsters in their enjoyment of the Christmas spirit, and the abundance of toys, candy and fruit that were given them by the kind hearted nurse, was a joyful sight.

The big Christmas tree was brilliantly lighted by electricity and was laden with gifts that would have amazed Kris Kringle's collection. All the afternoon the city hall resounded with the youngsters' joyful laughter that prevailed, every one joining in making their share of Christmas spirit. The assembly room was decorated with a wild scramble, the youngsters having a great time with bean bags or demonstrating just how the various games that Santa had brought them, worked. Every one had their fill of their candy and fruit and Miss Anderson deserves great credit for giving the juvenile citizens a most merry Christmas.

DEATH RATES FROM DISASTERS IN MINES

Report Shows the Number of Deaths Have Been Materially Reduced.

Washington, Dec. 22.—In a review of the work accomplished in the campaign to reduce the number of deaths in mines of the United States, the Federal Bureau of Mines today placed the states of Michigan and Minnesota in the honorable mention column.

The report, which deals with fatalities in the metal mines of the country for 1912, shows that Michigan has reduced its total deaths in the copper and iron mines from 134 in 1911 to ninety-six in 1912; that Minnesota has reduced its total deaths in the iron mines from seventy-six to fifty in the same period. The death rate for every 1,000 men employed in Michigan was 1.24 in 1911 and 0.25 in 1912, and in Minnesota 1.50 in 1911 and 0.02 in 1912.

The thirty-eight less lives lost in Michigan represent one miner saved for every 1,000 employed, and the twenty-six less lives lost in Minnesota represent one and one-half miners saved for every 1,000 at work.

"The decreases in Michigan and Minnesota in a year's time are the most remarkable we have encountered so far," said Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, the director of the bureau today, "and were largely due to an active safety campaign in the last three years. It is indeed gratifying to note that the Lake Superior mine operators are meeting with such marked success within so short a time. It shows what may be done in other states if special efforts are made to safeguard all engaged in the mining industry."

"I do not wish to be understood as agreeing that the death rates in Michigan and Minnesota are as low as they should be, or as low as they will eventually become, but I do say that these two states in the year have made more real progress toward the desired goal than any others in the Union, either in metal mining or coal mining, and that much credit is due the mine owners in these states for their activities in behalf of safety."

"From the very first, the Bureau of Mines has noted the friendly co-operative spirit between the operators and the miners, the state inspectors and the Bureau of Mines. The aggressive, progressive spirit manifested by all persons concerned, the cooperation on the part of the operators and the men to learn about the work of the bureau along safety lines, the enthusiastic, kindly greeting of the men of our rescue cars, the eagerness of the miners to take the prescribed rescue and first-aid training, all those were sufficiently noticeable to bring warm comments for the employees of the bureau. And the result has been so fruitful in so many less fatalities, so many less widows, and so many children who have their fathers left to them. If there were a lesson to the entire mining industry for the year just closing, I would point to the remarkable record made by Michigan and Minnesota."

The bureau's report on metal-mine accidents in the United States in 1912 shows 561 men killed, 4,502 seriously injured and 26,232 men slightly injured out of a total number of 169,199 men employed. The figures show a decrease of thirty-four deaths from 1911, despite the fact that Alaska with twenty-one fatalities is included for the first time in the 1912 report. The death rate for 1912 was 3.91 for every 1,000 employed as against 4.19 in the year 1911.

The report on metal-mine accidents completes the mortality statistics for the mining industry for the year 1912 and shows in coal mining, metal mining and quarrying, a total of 3,332 deaths for the year with a death rate of 3.22 as against 3.602 in 1911 and a rate of 3.35 in every 1,000 employed.

The Great Salt Lake

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

THE Great Salt Lake is the American edition of the Dead Sea. Like everything American, it is an enlargement and improvement upon the original, having several times its area and being far better equipped for the tourist trade.

The Great Salt Lake is 80 miles long and 20 to 30 miles wide. It is so deep enough to drown the tallest man. However, the only way in which even a short man could drown in this lake, would be to tie a rope to the bottom and climb down. This is because of specific gravity which strongly is the water impregnated with specific gravity. In fact, that human beings float in it without effort, their heads and toes above the surface. Floating in the Great Salt Lake is as easy as floating in New York society with only a title for support. However, the flatter must be careful not to swallow any of the water in an unguarded moment. It is seven times more disagreeable than the most popular and beneficial mineral water, and even if it were to be distributed free, on election day in a Bowers precinct, no one would willingly drink it.

This is because of its salt. We now approach the secret of this lake's name. It is from five to seven times as salty as the ocean, depending upon the industry of the sun in evaporating it from year to year. Fish cannot live in it—not even codfish—and vegetation for miles about it is extremely passe and dejected. Very little ice has been found for the lake thus far, though thousands of gallons of it are sold in small bottles to tourists during the season. Even a bath in it is a delusion and a snare, as the bather has to wash off with a hose afterward. However, the lake does stand between Utah and the salt trust in a noble and efficient manner, and it furnishes Salt Lake City with one of the most novel resorts in captivity.

The Great Salt Lake is remarkable for its fluctuations in size, surpassing in this respect the republican vote. For many years it gained steadily in area until Salt Lake City became nervous during every rainstorm. Then it shrank until the bathing pavilion was far out in the desert. Now it is growing again. It is better equipped with railroad facilities than any other body of water, the Southern Pacific railroad having built a bridge and causeway straight across it. After having viewed the marvelous energy of man at Niagara Falls and elsewhere, we are very thankful that the Southern Pacific did not move the lake away entirely instead of bringing it, thus wiping out a great national wonder.

Life is a Compliment.
I have an abiding faith that a falsehood never hurts anyone but him who propagates it. It is also my conviction that no man can pay a much greater homage to another than to deliberately misrepresent him. It is a cowardly confession of weakness and of inferiority.—John Bigelow, in "Retrospections of an Active Life."

Heat Lightning.
Heat lightning is ascribed to distant lightning flashes which are below the horizon, but illuminate the higher strata of clouds so that their brightness is visible at great distances; they produce no sound, probably in consequence of the fact of their being so far off that the rolling of thunder cannot reach the ear of the observer.

No More School Slates.
Remember the old school slates, bound in red flannel to prevent the noise of slate rattling that used to become unbearable, until manufacturers found how to muffle them? Stores selling school supplies used to carry great stocks of them, for it was a rare day in a room that did not see a slate or two broken; but where are they all now? Since the boards of health decided that they were insanitary and decreed against them, the whole tribe has disappeared.

Only True Liberty.
The liberty which is good is not the liberty of one gained at the expense of others, but the liberty which can be enjoyed by all who dwell together.—L. T. Hobhouse.

To Clean Smoked Paper.
Wring out a piece of soft flannel in water to which a little kerosene has been added. The flannel must be dampened, not wet, and the oil thoroughly mixed with water. Wipe the smoked surface with the moistened flannel, and then lightly and quickly with soft dry linen. Should one application be insufficient to remove the smoke, repeat the process, using clean flannel each time.

Altogether too successful.
Quizzer—"What's the matter, old man? You look worried." Sizzer—"I have cause to. I hired a man to trace my pedigree. Quizzer—"Well, what's the trouble? Hasn't he been successful?" Sizzer—"Successful! I should say he has! I'm paying him hush-money."—Judge.

PUNCTUAL STUDENTS GAINING IN NUMBER

INCREASE 97 IN ROLL OF HON-OR LIST WHICH IS BEST
IN HISTORY.

ADAMS SCHOOL LEADS

But Two Schools Fall Below Figures
Set Last Christmas—Total
Number Reaches 452

The punctuality of the graded school students in this city has increased enormously since last year at this time, the difference being just ninety-seven. Last year's figures showed that 354 students had been neither tardy or absent, while this year's list totals 452 punctual pupils. This increase is the best in the history of the city schools' honor lists. The schools fell back of last year's record mark set by their students. They are the Jackson, who lost two in number, and the Lincoln who can total but 32 this year, while last Christmas their list ran as high as 45. The other seven public schools are way ahead of their 1912 marks. Following is a list of the students who had been neither tardy or absent, since school opened in September, up to the time school closed last Friday:

MUST STUDY CATTLE TO OBTAIN RESULTS

FARMERS MUST USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING DAIRY LANDS.

FEEDING IS IMPORTANT

To Produce The Maximum Amount of Money Getting Milk—Should Carefully Watch and Feed Cows.

(Allen B. West.)

The Wisconsin Country Magazine says, "It is not an easy matter to pick out the poor cows from the herd even with a Babcock tester and a set of scales unless one knows the value of the feed that each cow consumes. There is also a great deal in the way a cow is cared for and housed. Quite often the cow that loses money for her owner would be a money maker for her neighbor."

Now it is probable that the writer of the above item used the word "value" in possibly two different senses, one meaning the money cost of the feed and the other its worth as a factor in milk production. This latter point is certainly one deserving careful consideration, and no little study on the part of the farmer.

My friend Jones is a professional man but living in a country town keeps a cow, which cow is cared for by his boy. Under his father's supervision the boy being like most boys at this time more interested in his own affairs than the affairs of the cow, the care varies somewhat. The other day Mrs. Jones remarked, "Daisy has been falling off in her milk for the past three days. I wonder what's the matter?" Mr. Jones looked thoughtful and then went to the telephone and gave an order for bran. "I intended ordering that the first of the week, but I forgot."

When Daisy had her usual supply of bran the amount of milk was again secured.

Another friend a few years ago when good cows were selling at $50 in this vicinity bought a grade Jersey of a farmer for $50. She was carefully fed and cared for and proved to be a good cow. She was a light feeder but an excellent producer, her record for nine months being 465 pounds of butter.

These two incidents from common experience illustrate the truth of the statements quoted at the head of this paper.

We will suppose that some Rock county farmer, (for whose help this series of articles is written) is planning to devote some of his time during these winter months to a serious study of conditions on his farm in an effort to get the maximum returns for his time, labor and money invested.

He has begun to use the scales and the Babcock test in the effort to prove which of his cows are profitable for him to keep. His first problem will be to so feed his cow and care for her that he may be sure they are producing milk and are profitable producing before he will be able to decide which ones are profitable.

"What is the best feed for dairy cows?" is a very common question. The answer is by no means simple. It reminds one of the old lady who was asked for a recipe for bread. She replied, "Well, you take a yaller bowl and a pinch of salt and use your judgement." The liberal use of judgment is the one thing necessary for the farmer who could feed his cows successfully. He must know the needs of the cow, and second, the nature of different feeds.

C. C. Hayden, first assistant in dairy husbandry of the University of Illinois, says, "The farmer who is to become a successful feeder must be willing to spend time and energy in studying the details of these subjects. The cow is a business partner, not easily defrauded. If she is the right kind of a cow, supplied with the proper materials, she will return a just amount of product, and if proper feed and care are withheld, she will withhold the desired product."

Food of the right kind and the proper amount is absolutely necessary to get the returns for which the dairyman labors—milk and butter fat in paying quantity. There is no short and definite answer to be given to the query, "What is the best feed." For there isn't any best feed. Conditions on farms vary, and what may be profitable for one farmer, may not be profitable for his neighbor.

To quote again from Mr. Hayden—"The best we can do is to put into the hands of the feeder the methods whereby he can work out his problems for himself, and the sooner he realizes this fact, the better it will be for his bank account. (The proper use of this head saves both muscle and money.)"

To give these methods will be the aim of this and succeeding papers, and it will be the purpose of the writer to present the matter as clearly and simply as possible. Bearing in mind the statement of the editor of Hoard's Dairyman, "that many farmers do not take his paper because they cannot understand it," it shall be my aim to explain all technical terms used and present if possible the A. B. C.'s of the feeding proposition. If this seems simple to any of my readers, let them remember this part is not for them, but for the "other fellow," not so fortunate as themselves.

Before we can feed any animal with the intelligence the problem demands we must understand the chemical composition of feeds. (This is a matter now taught in our graded and rural schools as well as in the agricultural course in the high schools, but many farmers have not had the advantage of such schooling.) We must also have clearly in mind what is the purpose of the various elements in feed. A. A. Upham in "Introduction of Agriculture," says:

"The animals on the farm are kept for certain definite purposes, as the horse for farm labor, the cow for milk or beef, the hen for eggs. We give them food or care in order that the results or products may be good. We might liken the animal to a machine by means of which the farmer gets certain products. The feed is the raw material, from which the products are manufactured. The products of the animal machine are: (1) heat; (2) new material to repair waste; (3) new material for growth; (4) eggs or young; (5) extra fat or other tissues; and (6) secretions. The most important products, as far as the welfare of the animal is concerned is animal heat or energy on which all other life processes depend. When this is supplied the other purposes of the food may be accomplished."

This means that cows must be given more than just enough food to keep them alive if we want them to keep up in flesh, to grow, to produce young, or to give milk.

The careful farmer knows it is a wasteful practice to keep cows out in the cold and he endeavors to make his stables as comfortable as possible,

Exposure to cold demands that a large proportion of the animal's feed be used as fuel to keep up animal heat, and consequently lessens the food that they make of their food for other purposes than body heat.

Now all our common feeds including plants used for feed contain the following materials, protein, carbohydrates, and fat.

Protein is a compound containing nitrogen. It is used to form muscle, blood, connective tissue, tendon, etc., as well as curd or casein and albumen in milk. Neither carbohydrate or fat can be used for this purpose, because they do not contain nitrogen. Protein forms nearly one-third of the solid materials found in milk and must therefore be supplied in large quantities. As most of our common feeds do not contain enough protein, we are obliged to purchase such feeds as linseed meal, gluten feed, cotton seed meal and bran. Protein should make up about one-sixth of the nutrients, the necessary elements of food, in the ration of a good cow. In the ration of a good cow there should be about one pound of protein. No other food can take its place. It is absolutely necessary to maintain the animal and to produce milk. As this part of the ration is the most expensive, it is necessary that the farmer know just the right amount to be given that he may not waste costly feed. As the farmer uses it he may console himself for its expense by remembering that it is a valuable element enriched by it and is a valuable element returned to his land to enrich his crops.

Carbohydrate of feeds differs from protein in that it does not contain nitrogen. It is abundant in the common grains and is used by the cow to supply energy, heat and fat in the body, and sugar and fat in the milk. It is the cheapest nutrient in the feeds because most abundant. Fat or oil is the third nutrient which is necessary to consider. It is contained in varying quantity in all feeds, none of them containing as much fat as carbohydrates. It is used by the cow for the same purposes as the carbohydrates. Careful experiments show that one pound of fat will take the place of two and one-fourth pounds of carbohydrate, so when making up rations, it is considered worth two and one-fourth times as much as an equal amount of the carbohydrate.

Before one can feed intelligently he must be able to tell into which class any feed falls, and also what the class requires. This calls for a careful study of feeds and requirements," Mr. Upham says.

"A ration is a certain fixed portion of food dealt out to a person or an animal." When an animal food has the proper proportion of the three classes of foods, protein, carbohydrates and fats it is said to be a balanced ration.

In a subsequent paper some tables will be given, showing the amounts of digestible nutrients in common feeds.

Dispensing Charity: A special meeting of the Sack company was held last night for the purpose of working up a plan for the disbursing of the money received at the recent charity meeting and ball under the auspices of that organization. The chair appointed the following as the committee: W. B. Britton, R. J. Richardson, C. S. Crosby, James A. Dennison, and Hiram Merrill. The committee were then given the power to draw orders on the fund in the treasurer's hands for the payment of articles which in the judgment of the committee are most needed by the destitute in their respective wards.

A matrimonial affair occurred last night in the Fourth ward at the residence of G. W. Bemis, by which his eldest daughter, Miss Floy I. Bemis, became Mrs. J. M. DeLent. It was plain to the observing ones that she could not always be Miss and therefore it is no surprise that she has lent herself to this affair. Rev. Jenk L. Jones and Rev. J. W. Lawrence performed the ceremony and a household of friends witnessed the happy joining together. E. J. Smith and Miss La. Bowen appeared as groomsmen and bridesmaid.

A stranger farmer was loading some bran on his wagon at one of the mills on the river this afternoon when his horse started and smashed the wagon. The streets were filled with bags of bran, wagon racks, spokes, wheels, spokes, whiffletrees and axletrees. J. C. Echlin's buggy was also broken by a runaway team. Echlin will have to foot it for several days.

It has been decided to hold the meeting of the state grange in this city commencing on the 26th day of January and continuing probably a week.

Senate's "Morning Hour." The first two hours of each day's session of the United States senate, beginning at twelve o'clock noon, are given to preliminary proceedings, such as debates on senate resolutions, first and second readings of bills, motions for reference, consideration of matters coming over from a previous day, etc. This so-called morning hour really covers two hours and at two o'clock p. m. the presiding officer lays before the senate the unfinished business, if there be any, and if not the regular calendar is in order.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE CULMINATION OF THE YEAR.
DAY AFTER tomorrow is Christmas, the culmination of a year. For when you stop to think of it, you will find that the whole year works up to Christmas.

On the printed calendar January 1st the beginning of one year and the end of another, but in the calendar of our hearts the year measures from one Christmas to another.

Scarcely has one Christmas passed before the world begins to prepare for the next. If you were going to get out a book for Christmas sale you might think September would be early enough to publish it, but as a matter of fact, the Christmas book is to be sold at Christmas.

So the reckoning of the year is not a matter of months, but of weeks. The wholesale salesmen start out on the road with their books for the next Christmas.

Surely there is nothing that suggests Christmas less than the breathless heat of a July or August day. It seems almost impossible that there ever was such a thing as Christmas or ever will be again. And yet never a summer day passes but that hundreds and thousands of women all over the country are busy with their needles "making something for Christmas."

It is the middle of September before we are all home from our summer vacations. We have a week or two to settle down in, and two or three weeks to get our fall clothes into shape, and then, if we do not mean to be last-minute shoppers, it is high time to begin our Christmas shopping. I have often seen Christmas bargains advertised in October and by November the Christmas rush is actually begun.

At about this period we discard ordinary time reckoning and date everything before or after Christmas. "When are you going South?" "Oh, sometime before Christmas." "Are you going to buy a new suit this year?" "Not till after Christmas." "When is your sister coming home?" "A couple of weeks before Christmas."

Thanksgiving, our typical American festival, which in the old Puritan days far outstripped Christmas, is becoming now merely a little side eddy in the powerful current that rushes us toward Christmas. "No, I shan't try to get home Thanksgiving," says the traveler or the student, "it's too near Christmas." If Thanksgiving wants more attention it will certainly have to get itself moved into some other part of the year.

Of course Christmas is the culmination of the year in a financial way. People spend in a reckless fashion they never dream of at any other time. The amount of money that changes hands in preparation for Christmas must be simply enormous. Reckoning $2 a person, and I do not think that is too large, for while there are many people who do not spend as much, there are millions who spend a great deal more than that. In the United States $150,000,000 is spent on Christmas. One wonders what the merchants would do without this tremendous impetus to trade. And what would be done with the money that was not spent in this way. One can only help wonder also at the risk of being thought a joy-moralist—if poverty in the United States could not be almost abolished by the proper use of $150,000,000 a year.

But I didn't intend to moralize when I began. So I'll drop that subject and just remind you once more, the case I have forgotten: Day after tomorrow is Christmas, the culmination of the year.

MENU HELPS FOR BUSY WOMEN DURING THE CHRISTMAS RUSH.

There is one thought which I like to keep constantly in mind when writing for my readers. It is that, nearly, if not quite, 90 per cent of the women in this country at the head of homes do their own cooking. It sounds too large to be true, doesn't it? Statistics have proven for us, however, that it is the case. This brings me to the thing I have been thinking much about lately, and that is the woman with a family to provide three meals a day for, amidst all the excitement of her Christmas giving, decoration of the home to give it a festive air with perhaps a visit or two to the dressmaker, extra planning for some entertainment for the children home from school, besides the numerous extra things which come always into the everyday life of the household.

If she keeps well and strong with all this extra pressure it is because she has learned how to systematize her work, make every step count and plan her food which will nourish and build, without waste and needless expense. These meals should contain all the nutritive food value and be easy and simple to prepare as well. The breakfast should be simple, but food that is staying qualities. If the luncheon can be at 11 o'clock or half-past, it is fine to make this an all fruit meal, adding a cup of cocoa. Coffee is stimulating, but cocoa is a food. I would recommend it for breakfast, luncheon or the evening meal and it will make every member of the family sure to like it.

The luncheon may be a good vegetable, thick or cream soup, boiled rice, baked potatoes, macaroni and cheese, salads, fruits. In fact, any food, but easily prepared and well planned in advance.

Use the fireless cooker whenever possible for the dinner, as this will save time and watching in the cooking and give freedom for Christmas preparations.

Heart and Home Problems
BY MISS ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My father has been separated from his father in Germany for about forty years and has never been able to locate him since. I have now learned that he is known to father, of an aunt who might still be living, and as father is getting older, he wishes each day to be able to see or hear from his father again.

The trouble now is that I do not know where to address a letter to this aunt, who is living and resides in a small village called Crumville.

Further from this I know nothing but the name of the aunt before marriage (and do not know if she has married), but earnestly hope that you will be able to help me a little as I certainly wish to see father and his father united again. C. S.

Write to the American consul located at the city nearest the town in which your aunt lives. Give him all the particulars you have and he may be able to help you. If you will write to the German consul at Cleveland, also, he may be able to advise you just what is best to do.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What will keep the hair light without bleaching?

(2) What will keep the hands from chapping?

(1) Use a little baking soda or borax in the water in which you wash your hair.

(2) What do you think of a man of about fifty visiting us quite often, asking me to play the piano and while in the other room kissing my hand?

G. M.

(1) If you cannot join in the conversation, be a good listener. Learn to laugh over others' jokes, to look interested in what they have to say, and to look pleasant. Then they will like to have you with them.

(2) Dainty white and brown bread sandwiches, chicken salad, small cakes and chocolate.

(3) Peroxide, but don't use it too often. Charcoal is better.

(4) Kid curlers are better than the curling tongs. But why curl the hair? If you keep it well brushed and in healthy condition it will have a natural wave which is far prettier than artificial curls.

(5) You might say that you had an enjoyable time and then wish him a pleasant good night.

(6) There is a wallpaper cleaner that is very good to use on kid gloves. Fresh rye bread squeezed into a dough is also good.

(7) I think he is old enough to know better.

GELATINE DISHES.
The common sized packages of gelatin will make two quarts of jelly. When recipes call for half a package it is easy to measure, as each package contains four tablespoonsful. Gelatin is a good medium for fruit juices and fruits, or a food itself. It is not of much value, although it has proved itself a valuable adjunct, as oil is valuable in running machinery. Gelatin is a proteid saver and as such should be regarded highly.

Coffee Jelly.—Soak a half box of granulated gelatin in half a cup of cold water, add a half cup of sugar, a half pint each of boiling water and strong coffee. Stir until the sugar is dissolved, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and strain through a double cheese cloth into wet molds. Serve with sweetened whipped cream or a thin custard.

Spanish Cream.—Scald three cups of milk, add a half of a cup of sugar and a tablespoonful of gelatin, pour slowly on the yolks of three well beaten eggs, cook until the egg is thickened, remove from the heat and add a tablespoonful of vanilla, a fourth of a teaspoon of salt and the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Turn into small molds and chill. Serve with cream.

Lemon Jelly.—This is a jelly which may be served plain or in combination with such fruits as figs, prunes or dates. The jelly may be used as a salad with nuts and celery, or with bits of fresh fruit. The variety of ways of using it makes it a favorite. Take two tablespoonsful of granulated gelatin, let it soften in half a cup of cold water, dissolve in two and a half cups of boiling water, strain and add a cupful of sugar and half cup of lemon juice. Turn into a mold and chill.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
Place the point of the spoon containing the medicine against the roof of the mouth. Administered in this way it will be impossible for the child to choke or reject the medicine.

If two or three lumps of sugar are placed in the spoon and the child will absorb all moisture and will prevent rust and the musty smell which is the result of their being left half dry.

Clean all brass articles with rotten stone and sweet oil then polish with whiting and camellia. It is best to heat the plates before putting hot pies on them when first taken out of the oven. If hot pies are put on cold plates they sweat, making the under crust soggy.

THE TABLE.
Breakfast: Roll, split a quart of flour and stir into it a tablespoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of sugar, a cup of warm milk, two tablespoonfuls of melted fat and two beaten eggs. Dissolve a quarter of a cake of compressed yeast in a little warm milk and beat in last of all. Set the dough in a bowl to rise until morning. Early in the morning make quick and lightly into rolls and set to rise near the fire for twenty minutes. Bake for about an hour.

Fried Catfish.—Skin and clean; lay the fish in very cold water for a few minutes, then wipe them dry. Dredge thoroughly with flour, or roll them first in beaten egg, then cracker crumbs, and fry in a delicate brown.

Stuffed Mushrooms.—Peel, lay upon a buttered platter and cook over clear coals, allowing three minutes to each side of the mushrooms. Transfer to thin slices of crustless toast, put a bit of butter and a dash of salt and marinate each mushroom and set in an oven just long enough to melt the butter.

Porterhouse Steak With Oysters.—Broil a fine tender steak on both sides and transfer it to a hot dish. Pepper and salt well, then rub into the steak a mixture of butter rubbed to a cream with the juice of half a lemon. Put one pint of oysters into a sauce pan without any of the liquor. Stir until the edges ruffle, add one tablespoonful of butter creamed with an equal amount of flour and cooked to a roux. Pour over the hot steak and serve at once.

Cream Celery in Edam Cheese Shell.—Cut the cleaned celery stalks into inch lengths and cook until tender in boiling water, slightly salted. For three cupsful of the cut celery allow a pint of white sauce, using the water in which the celery was cooked with the cream, as the liquid. Turn into the shell of an Edam cheese, cover it with a cupful of fine cracker crumbs, mixed with two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and let it brown in the oven. Send around powdered cheese with this dish.

Sour Cream Cake.—Beat the yolks of three eggs until stiff, add one cupful of sugar and one cupful of rich sour cream, in which has been dissolved one scant teaspoonful of soda. Add two cupfuls of sifted flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and one teaspoonful of lemon extract. Bake in a shallow pan.

Almond Macaroons.—Beat the whites of three eggs stiff and whip into them half a cupful of powdered sugar, a quarter-pound of almond paste, crumble fine, half a teaspoonful of cornstarch and five drops of essence of bitter almonds. Drop by spoonful on buttered paper and bake in a hot oven. If you do not get almond paste, pound blanched almonds fine.

There is always some one at the very last moment before Christmas that has been forgotten in the preparations and planning of the gifts, for one can keep a list and thus simplify the work, but even with the list there is bound to be someone who is not provided for.

A few cheap inexpensive gifts that can be quickly made at home and that fill the gap in a way that will not be a strain on one's purse (by the way as the day draws near, and the shopping is completed, one nearly so—the purses of most of us will not stand much of a strain, so lean they have become) are what one should plan on having.

Hair receivers, trinket boxes, stamp boxes, hinter cases are all little gifts that can be quickly added to the list and as one roll of holly paper will make a number of such remembrances, the cost will be no large amount.

A pretty dolly case is made of two foundations of cardboard covered with holly paper on one side and red crepe paper on the other. Pierce one foundation with holes about half an inch from the edge all round, and ribbon through them. Pierce the sides covered with the red crepe paper towards each other and tie them together with ribbon, thus forming the case. This is really a gift that will be appreciated by a housewife to keep her best dolly in when they are kept in the drawer with the everyday table linen. This gift can be made for eight cents, but you would not think so as you viewed the finished product.

A work basket that you can make for less than twenty cents is made by cutting four sections of cardboard, lining the inside with red, the outside with holly paper, and lacing together with ribbon. The bottom is laced to the sides in the same way and the price need not be over twenty cents if you get narrow ribbon, as it is the ribbon that is the cost of the basket. It may be made in dainty size, or large enough to hold the family darning. It will well repay the time and the small cost of making, as it is a serviceable, pretty gift.

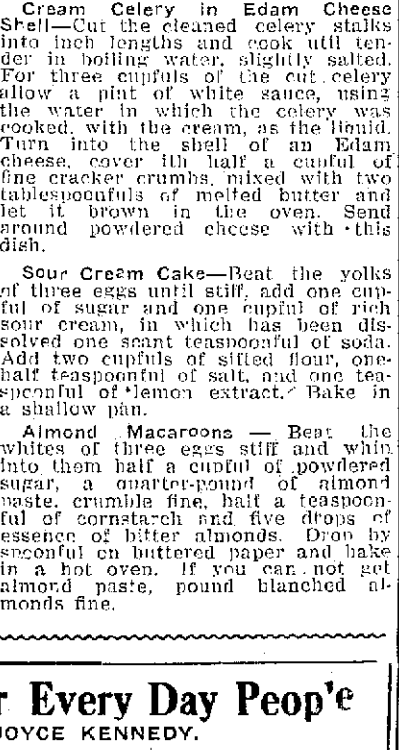

A letter rack will be appreciated, even if the recipient be the owner of a desk, for they are the very last word in usefulness to the woman who is systematic and has a place for everything. The rack is simply two foundations covered with holly paper and caught together with little bows of holly ribbon. The back is to be larger than the front and it is very prettily covered with white crepe paper and trimmed with designs cut from the holly paper. This gift can be finished at a cost of five or six cents, and is a gift that a woman or girl will welcome.

The most of these presents the children can make, and when they are finished you will be forced to admire the finished look they have given them, as the average child is taught to make so many pretty things at school that we can safely trust them with the making of many of these gifts.

It isn't the over-indulged child that has the happiest Christmas. It's the ones who had had an active part in the preparations; the ones who feel as if without them the day would not have been so successfully prepared or enjoyed.

INCREASE YOUR WEIGHT TO MATCH YOUR HEIGHT

Thin, emaciated people, who are not as heavy as one of their height should take Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion, the ideal nerve and body builder. Being under weight almost always means that one's health is not good, that some part of the system is not doing its work well—that the nerves and blood are not in healthy enough shape themselves to properly direct and nourish the bodily organs causing the trouble.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion builds weight because it furnishes ingredients necessary to nourish and rebuild the wasting tissues, to replenish the blood, to make the nerves strong and well. It is a real medicine—not an alcoholic beverage, as many so-called "tonics" are. The latter only stimulate, instead of feeding and strengthening the system, and leave you worse off than before.

You who are underweight, tired-out, run-down, nervous, easily exhausted, and have been vainly dousing yourself with "remedies" that have done you no lasting good, take Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. In a few days you will begin to feel better, and after a few weeks will feel like a new person—or we will gladly give you back your money. There is no alcohol, nor any dangerous or habit-forming drug in Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is a strength and weight and health-building medicine—not a dope. For the emaciated and debilitated—the convalescing—growing children—aged people—it is a sensible aid to renewed strength, better spirits, glowing health.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion—king of the celebrated Rexall Remedies—is for freedom from sickness of you and your family. Pleasant-tasting—unlike the cod liver oil preparations—you'll be as enthusiastic about it as we are when you have noted its strengthening, invigorating, building, disease-preventing effects. THE LAWBy MARVIN DANA

BAYARD VEILLER

"Was that promise made in writing?" "No," Aggie answered gushingly. "But all his letters were in writing, you know. Such wonderful letters! So tender and so—interesting!"

"Yes, yes, I dare say," Irwin agreed hastily, with some evidences of chagrin. "But you're quite sure, Agnes," Mary questioned gently, "that General Hastings did promise to marry you?"

"Oh, yes," Aggie declared tensely. "Why, I would swear to it." The timid eyes, so appealing in their soft luster, were now staring, then gazed trustfully into those of the routed attorney. "We're beaten," he confessed dejectedly, turning his glance toward Mary, whom plainly he regarded as his real adversary in the combat on his client's behalf. "I'm going to be quite frank with you, Miss Turner, quite frank," he stated, with more gentleness, though with a very crestfallen air. "We can't afford any scandal, so we're going to settle at your own terms." He took from his pocket a thick bill case and from this a sheet of banknotes, which he laid on the desk before Mary, with a little laugh of discomfiture over having been beaten in the contest.

As he did so Aggie thrust forth an aversive hand, but it was caught and held by Mary before it reached above the top of the desk, and the aversive gesture passed unobserved by the attorney.

"We can't fight where ladies are concerned," he went on, assuming as best walked quickly toward the door.

"Oh, you forgot your marked money, Mr. Irwin," Mary said.

The lawyer wheeled and stood staring at the speaker with a certain sheepishness of expression that bore witness to the completeness of his discomfiture. Without a word he walked back to the desk, picked up the money and restored it to the bill case. "Young woman," he said emphatically, "you ought to have been a lawyer." And he took his departure, while Mary smiled in triumph and Aggie sat gazing astoundedly.

"You've darn near broke my heart," she cried, bounding up violently, "letting all that money go out of the house. Say, how did you know it was marked?"

"I didn't," Mary replied blandly. "But it was a pretty good guess, wasn't it?" Couldn't you see that all he wanted was to get the letters and have us take the marked money? Then, my simple young friend, we would have been arrested very neatly indeed—for blackmail!"

"Gee!" she cried. "That would have been fierce! And now?" she questioned apprehensively.

Mary's answer repudiated any possibility of fear.

"And now," she explained contentedly, "he really will go to our lawyer. There he will pay over that same marked money. Then he will get the letters he wants so much. And just because it's a strictly business transaction between two lawyers, with everything done according to legal ethics!"

"And it's actually the same old game!" Aggie mused.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Thief.

MARY was in joyous spirits after her victorious matching of brains against a lawyer of high standing in his profession when she had entered the telephone booth, which had been installed in an extra closet of her bedroom for the sake of greater privacy on occasion. During her absence from the drawing room Garson again came into the apartment seeking her. On being told by Aggie as to Mary's whereabouts he sat down to await her return, listening without much interest to the chatter of the adventuress. The maid appeared and said:

"There's a girl wants to see Miss Turner."

"She says it's important. I guess the poor thing's in hard luck from the look of her," the kindly Fannie added. "Oh, then, she'll be welcome, of course!" Aggie declared, and Garson nodded in acquiescence. "Tell her to come in and wait, Fannie, Miss Turner will be here right away." She turned to Garson as the maid left the room. "Mary sure is an easy book," she remarked cheerfully. "Bless her soft heart!"

A minute later a girl perhaps twenty years of age stepped just within the doorway and stood there with eyes downcast after one swift, furtive glance about her. Her whole appearance was that of dejection. Her soiled black gown, the cringing posture, the pallor of her face, proclaimed the abject misery of her state.

"Are you Miss Turner?" she asked in a voice broken by nervous dismay. "Really, I am very sorry," Aggie replied primly, "but I am only her cousin, Miss Agnes Lynch. But Miss Turner is likely to be back any minute now."

"Can I wait?" came the timid question.

"Certainly," Aggie answered hospitably. "Please sit down."

As the girl obediently sank down on the nearest chair Garson addressed her sharply, so that the visitor started uneasily at the unexpected sound.

"You don't know Miss Turner?"

"No," came the faint reply.

"Then, what do you want to see her about?"

"She once helped a girl friend of mine, and I thought—I thought—" "You thought she might help you?" Garson interrupted.

"You have been in stir—prison, I mean," Aggie hastily corrected the lapse into underworld slang. "Come a distressed muttering of assent from the girl."

The conversation was put to an end by the entrance of Mary, who stopped short on seeing the limp figure huddled in the chair.

"A visitor, Agnes?" she inquired.

"At the sound of her voice the girl looked up and spoke with some degree of energy."

"You're Miss Turner?" she questioned.

"Yes," Mary said. Her words rang kindly and she smiled encouragement.

A gasp burst from the white lips of the girl, and she covered as one stricken physically.

"Mary Turner! Oh, my God! I—She hid her face within her arms and sat bent until her head rested on her knees in an abasement of misery."

Yagnely startled by the hysterical outburst from the girl, Mary's immediate thought was that there was a pitiful instance of one suffering from starvation.

"Fae," she directed rapidly, "have Fannie bring a glass of milk with an egg and a little brandy in it, right away."

The girl in the chair was shaking soundlessly under the stress of her emotions. A few disjointed phrases fell from her quivering lips.

"I didn't know—oh, I couldn't!"

"Don't try to talk just now," Mary warned, reassuringly. "Wait until you've had something to eat."

Aggie, who had observed developments closely, now lifted her voice in tardy lamentations over her own stupidity.

"Why, the poor gawk's hungry!" she exclaimed. "And I never get the dope on her. Ain't I the simp?"

The girl regained a degree of self control and showed something of forgotten dignity.

"Yes," she said dully, "I'm starving." Mary regarded the afflicted creature with that sympathy born only of experience.

"Yes," she said softly, "I understand." Then she spoke to Aggie. "Take her to my room and let her rest there for awhile. Have her drink the egg and milk slowly and then lie down for a few minutes anyhow."

Half an hour afterward Aggie reported with her charge, who, though still shambling of gait and stooping, showed by some faint color in her face and an increased steadiness of bearing that the food had already strengthened her much.

"She would come," Aggie explained. "I thought she ought to rest for awhile longer anyhow."

"I'm all right, I tell you," came the querulous protest.

"Are you quite sure?" Mary said to the girl. "Then tell us all about it—this trouble of yours, you know. What is your name?"

"Helen Morris."

"I don't have to ask if you have been in prison. Your face shows it."

"I—I came out—three months ago."

"And you'd made up your mind to go straight?"

"Yes." The word was a whisper.

"You were going to do what the chaplain had told you," Mary went on.

"You were going to start all over again, weren't you?"

The bent head of the girl bent lower in assent.

"It doesn't work very well, does it?"

"No, I'm whipped."

Mary's manner changed. She spoke cheerfully for the first time.

"Well, then, how would you like to work with us?"

"You—mean that?"

"Our kind of work pays well when you know how. Look at us. Suppose I should stake you for the present and put you in with a good crowd. All you would have to do would be to answer advertisements for servant girls. I will see that you have the best of references. Then, when you get in with the right people you will open the front door some night and let in the gang. Of course you will make a getaway when they do and get your bit as well."

There flashed still another of the swift, shy glances, and the lips of the girl parted as if she would speak. But she did not; only her head sagged even lower on her breast and the shrunken form grew yet more shrunken.

"It doesn't suit you? Good! I was in hopes it wouldn't. So, here's another plan. Suppose you could go west—some place where you would have a fair chance, with money enough so you could live like a human being till you got a start?"

There came a tensing of the relaxed form, and the head lifted a little, so that the girl could look at her questioner.

"I will give you that chance," Mary said simply, "if you really want it."

The wretched girl sat suddenly erect, and her words came eagerly.

"Oh, I do!" And now her hungry gaze remained fast on the face of the woman who offered her salvation.

"Then I have just one thing to say to you first. If you are going to live straight start straight, and then go through with it. Do you know what that means?"

"You mean keep straight all the time?" The girl spoke with a force drawn from the other's strength.

"I mean more than that. I mean forget that you were ever in prison. I don't know what you have done—I don't think I care. But whatever it was, you have paid for it—a pretty big price too."

"I have, I have!" The thin voice broke, quivering.

"Well, then," Mary went on, "just begin all over again, and be sure you stand up for your rights. Don't let them make you pay a second time. Go where no one knows you, and don't tell the first people who are kind to you that you have been crooked. If they think you are straight, why, be it. Then nobody will have any right to complain. Will you promise me this?"

"Yes, I promise," came the answer, very gravely, quickened with hope.

"Good!" Mary exclaimed, with a smile of approval. "Wait a minute," she added and left the room.

"Huh! Pretty soft for some people," Aggie remarked to Garson, with a snarl.

Mary returned soon. In her hand she carried a roll of bills. She went to the girl and held out the money.

"Take this. It will pay your fare west and keep you quite awhile if you are careful."

But, without warning, a revulsion seized on the girl. She shrank again and turned her head away as her body trembled.

"Can't take it!" she exclaimed. "I can't! I can't!"

"Didn't you come here for help?"

"Yes," was the faltering reply, "but—I—I didn't know—it was you!"

"Then you have met me before?" Mary said quietly.

"No, no!" The girl's voice rose shrill.

Aggie spoke her mind with frankness. "She's lying."

Garson agreed. His yes was spoken in a tone of complete certainty. "That Mary, too, was of their opinion was shown in her next words."

"So you have met me before?"

Where?

The girl unwittingly made confession in her halting words.

"I can't tell you." There was despair in her voice.

"You must."

The girl only crouched lower.

to poultry raising he was quite satisfied with life.

But this poultry business was a bit too much. He had to take the eggs as they were laid and write the date on them with an indelible pencil. And worse than that, he had also to write on the eggs the breed of the hen that had laid them.

So one day he marched up to the farmer.

"I'm about fed up," said he, "and I'm going to leave!"

The farmer was astonished.

"Surely, Sam," said he, "you're not going to leave me after all these years?"

"Yes, but I am," retorted Sam. "I've done every kind of rotten job on this here farm, but I'd rather starve than go on being secretary to your old hens!"

Education Invaluable.

Education is a companion that no misfortune can depress, no climate destroy, no enemy alienate, no despotism enslave; at home a friend, abroad an introduction, in society an ornament, in solitude a solace. It chastens vice, guides virtue, and gives at once grace and government to genius. Without it, what is man? A splendid slave, a reasoning savage, vacillating between the dignity of an intelligence derived from God, and the degradation of passions participated by brutes.—Coleridge.

How to Make the Best
Cough Remedy at Home

A Family Supply at Small Cost, and Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing one pint of granulated sugar and 1/2 pint of warm water and stir for 2 minutes.

Put 2 1/2 ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold almost instantly, and will usually conquer an ordinary cough in 24 hours.

It ties up the inflamed appetite, and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste.

Also excellent for bronchial trouble, bronchial asthma, whooping cough and spasmodic croup.

This method of making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is now used in more homes than any other cough syrup.

This explains why it is often imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in gualacal and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

he might contrive a chivalrous tone. "So, if you will just hand over General Hastings' letters, why, here's your money. You have the letters, haven't you?" he demanded abruptly.

Aggie coyly took a thick bundle from its resting place on her rounded bosom. "They never leave me," she said.

"Well, they can leave you now, all right," the lawyer remarked unsympathetically. He reached quickly forward for the packet, which Aggie extended willingly enough. But it was Mary, who, with a swift movement caught and held it.

"I think," Mary explained tranquilly, "that you had better see our lawyer, Mr. Harris, in reference to this. We women know nothing of such details of business settlement."

"Oh, I see," he said disagreeably, with a frown to indicate his complete sagacity in the premises.

"I thought you would, Mr. Irwin," Mary returned. "If you'll take the money to Mr. Harris Miss Lynch will meet you in his office at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and, when her suit for damages for breach of promise has been legally settled out of court, you will get the letters. Good afternoon, Mr. Irwin."

The lawyer made a hurried bow which took in both of the women, and

FAMOUS BUILDINGS CONTEST EXCITING

Hundreds of Answers Received at Gazette Office Before Noon Today
—The First Twenty Correct Answers Win.

No contest that has been conducted by the Gazette has evoked so much interest as the present one on the Famous Buildings of the World. Harry J. had the copies of last evening's Gazette been delivered before answers began reaching the office. As fast as received they were filed away, the time of receipt noted, and on letters mailed the hour of mailing was taken. The first twenty correct answers received, according to time of receipt, will be awarded the prizes. If none are correct the first twenty that are nearest correct.

The architecture of beautiful buildings has been described as "frozen music." Just as there are different forms and degrees of art in music, so, too, there are in architecture. As in music, poetry and painting—there are certain masterpieces of architecture which make a profound impression on every spectator. The most famous example of this kind is located in India. One writer defines it as a "symphony in stone." Architects of all nations have always hailed it as the most exquisite structure ever conceived by the human mind in all the ages. The editor of this newspaper is curious to now whether you can name it when it will be reproduced in the composite illustration of the world's famous structures which appeared in our issue of Monday. In order to assist you in identifying it, here are just a few "tips." The building is distinctive not alone as a priceless jewel of architecture but also because of the romance of it and the motive that prompted its erection. It stands as a temple or monument of the love and devotion of an Indian emperor for his queen. In this respect, as well as the supreme beauty of its lines, the building is in marked contrast to our present era of commercialism, when buildings are erected for profit only—not for sentiment. Its history is more interesting than the most vivid tale ever penned by writers of present day "best sellers." But notwithstanding all the glories of wondrous palace, with its jeweled walls, it could not satisfy the heart of the builder. On the contrary, disaster tread fast on the heels of disaster for him and he spent the last seven years of his life a hopeless captive imprisoned by his rebellious son. He experienced the bitterest sorrow accompanied by ill-treatment from his son in honor of whose mother the edifice was erected. During all this period of imprisonment only one consolation remained for the father, and that was the loyalty and fidelity of the daughter who shared, voluntarily, his long imprisonment trying to comfort him for the loss of his idolized wife and the ingratitude of the son. Possibly there is nothing more pathetic in all history than this repudiation of all royal luxury and devotion of a daughter contrasted with the brutality of son and brother. That the father had enjoyed a limited power is indicated by the fact that this one building represents the labor of twenty thousand men for twenty years, including the most skilled workmen to be found in the world at that epoch. He erected other edifices that astounded the world, but the fairest mausoleum which this earth has ever seen was erected for his wife, and yet when it was finished he could not enter it to mourn beside her because the man who had robbed him of his throne, his wealth, his power, and even his liberty, besides murdering his remaining three sons, was his own son by the woman he so idolized. He had been wedded to her fourteen years when he started to build this—the grandest tomb of all times—yet it was only from his prison cell at a great distance that he could gaze on this peerless monument dedicated to the pure love of his wife. When the veil of death crept over his eyes, he turned a last lingering look toward the majestic white domes of marble he reared, but he never saw them. He died before the conqueror-son allowed the body to enter the edifice and repose beside the body of his wife to the end of time. Grandeur and beauty distinguish every line of the building. Speechless, as a dream—a dream of marble—yet it stands as the world's most eloquent tribute of domestic devotion. The world contains no finer illustration of the fact that the most sublime art of the human hand is simplicity. The secret of its charm, like most things that are truly great, is its simplicity. The mind grasps it without effort. It has the purity and majesty of the Jungles and the harmony of line is perfect. One part balances another, the base is proportioned to the pedestal, the smaller domes to the great central one, and the ornaments to the entire structure. It is the one absolutely faultless edifice reared by man.

All India was ransacked to furnish the building materials. The marble came from one province, the sandstone from another. The Punjab sent it jasper, Ceylon gave sapphires and lapis-lazuli, and agate, onyx, turquoise and carnelians came from Tibet, Persia and Arabia. The emperor, in his profound grief and longing earthly riches as nothing, lavished his untold wealth here on a scale so magnificent that it defies description. Appropriately enough, the acoustics of the structure are also recognized as more wonderful than those of any other building in the world. The dome echoes all sounds as if the upper space were tenanted by a celestial choir, chanting an endless requiem to this ideal and idyllic union both in life and death.

Can you name this building dedicated to the memory of a beloved wife, and at the same time the most perfect structure in the world? As it is the grandest homage that man has ever paid to womanhood, it seems well worth knowing its name.

You can name it in connection with the other famous buildings in the illustration which appeared in our issue of Monday. It may make your list complete enough to win a reserved seat for Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival at the Myers Theatre on Dec. 5-25.

Around each of the great structures included in the remarkable illustration is a story of human interest and historic importance that every well-informed reader should know.

The buildings are only those which every one should know, and this contest is conducted solely to test the knowledge of this newspaper's readers. The illustration includes only seven of the world's most famous buildings—numbered from 1 to 7.

You need to do is to put down numbers from 1 to 7 on a list of paper. Write opposite each number the name of the building. Then be sure to have your list reach the Gazette office before Wednesday noon addressed to the "Famous Building Editor."

Write plainly and give your name and address on your list.

Senders of the first twenty lists nearest correct will each receive from this newspaper a reserved seat to travel with Lyman H. Howe at the Myers Theatre on Dec. 26 to the Grand Canyon in Arizona, through the French Alps, and by aeroplane over Paris; also see wondrous forms of

The Prince of Wied, his wife and daughter.

The European powers have offered to Prince William of Wied the throne of Albania, and he is expected to take up his duties as ruler of the new principality in January. Prince William is the elder of the two brothers of Frederick, sixth Prince of Wied. He was born on March 26, 1876, and holds a commission in the Prussian army. In 1906 he married Sophia, Princess of Schönburg-Waldenburg. His only child, Princess Maria Eleonora, was born at Potsdam on February 19, 1909.

On the Spur of the Moment

Spur of the moment Song of the Gas Meter.

Deep in the basement's murky gloom Where Stygian shades are lurking They make me say and do my stunts Where none can see me working.

Methinks some union I will join, The eight-hour day I'm seeking, Full twenty-four I put in now, 'Tis but the truth I'm speaking.

I was attacked the other night By someone who did blunder Into my basement dark and drear, He had a voice like thunder, And what he said about me there Right off my face was shocking, He said he tried to save his coin, But I was always knocking.

This householder then tried in vain, With monkey wrench and hatchet, To fix me so I would quit work, His wrath, you couldn't match it, It did him not the slightest good To fix my wheels or lever, For men may come and men may go, But I go on forever.

Bill, the Barber on the Tariff, Bill's head felt like a hollow log, And his tongue like a shredded wheat biscuit when he got to the shop that morning and he looked like the tag end of a misspent life.

"What's wrong?" asked the Regular Customer, Were you out with your foot on the brass rail again last evening?"

"No, said Bill, 'Not joy last night but cats. Just cats. Every cat in the world sat on my back fence last night and sang sweet nothings to his lady love."

"Old Oscar W. Underclothes down in Washington, made a terrific mistake when he put fiddle strings on the free list. That's all I have got to say about it. I voted the Democrat ticket twenty years, but never again. Oscar Underwear, what does he do? He puts violin strings on the free list and allows cheap pauper foreign cats to compare with our cats here at home and as a result, home made cats are not killed for fiddle strings. Do you get me, Steve?"

"Now, with a high protective tariff on fiddle strings, the great American fiddle would be exterminated in large numbers so that the internal economy of the same might be converted into said strings. There were enough cats on my back fence last night to have furnished fiddle strings for the combined symphony orchestras of New York, London, Paris, Vienna, and Timbuctoo. When you come to consider the number of back fences in this country, the proposition becomes immense. One cannot compute the number of fiddle strings that are not being developed. It is a sheer waste of raw material."

"I threw a whole set of Dickens, one book at a time, the alarm clock, five pairs of shoes and a soapstone griddle and never hit a cat. We got to sleep at five o'clock this morning."

"The fiddle string industry in this country must be protected. Our own home cats must furnish them and after a cat has furnished a few fiddle strings, he's not keeping people awake nights much and he loses interest in alley fence grand opera. What do you want on your face?"

"A little skin, please," replied the Regular Customer.

"Oh, very well," replied Bill, "We'll let it go at that."

Our Washington News. There is some pressure being brought to bear to have elastic currency adopted by this country, at least currency that is elastic enough to stretch from one pay day to another. Congress has made an appropriation for a battleship which will be the greatest battleship in the world for at least fifteen minutes after she is launched. Then some other country will launch a greater one.

Washington people were surprised last Tuesday evening to note a pink collection in the sky resembling the Aurora Borealis. It transpired later that a searchlight had struck Senator Jim Hain Lewis whiskers while he was walking down Pennsylvania avenue. Asked what was the trouble in Mexico, Senator Jones said: "The trouble with Mexico is that there are too many Mexicans there," which seems to hit the matter as squarely on the head as it can be hit as we gallop off to press.

Bedlam.

The word Bedlam is a corruption of the word Bethlehem, which was the name of a religious house in London, converted into an asylum for lunatics in 1546. It is believed by many to be the oldest asylum for lunatics in Europe, though there is one in Spain which is said to have been founded at an earlier date.

Too Much Competition. "Hang it!" mutters the enraptured youth. "What chance have I to get her alone? She has to go to the auto show, the food show, the flower show, the dog show, the millinery show, the land show and—Oh, well, there's no show for me!"—Judge.

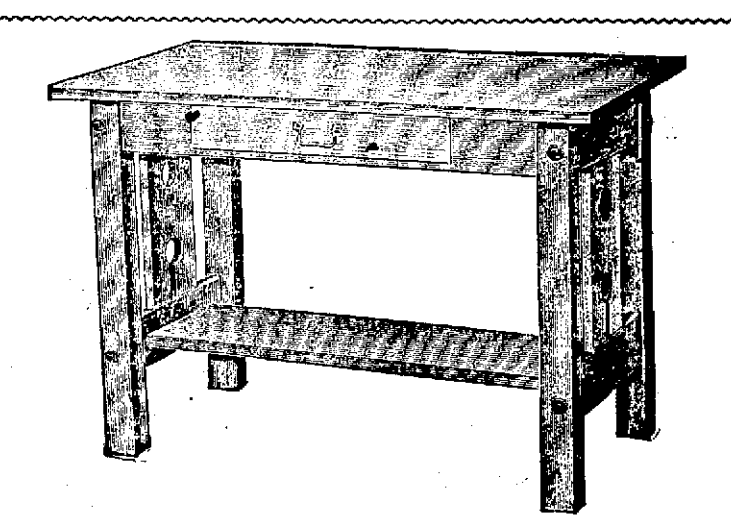

Sharks in Scottish Waters.

A school of sharks, for some days has invaded the Firth of Forth, and one of the Dunbar line fishing fleet reports that a large stretch of fishing gear, consisting particularly of lines, has been carried away. While hauling the remaining portions several sharks were observed to hover about.
